
Máster Universitario en Banca y Finanzas (FINANCE & BANKING)

CIFF Centro
Internacional
de Formación
Financiera
Universidad de Alcalá

Faculty

Diego Azqueta (Director)

PhD in Economic Science "cum laude" from the University Complutense of Madrid and a Master of Science in Economic Development with distinction from the University of London. He has held teaching positions as a Visiting scholar at Harvard University and as a visiting Professor at the University of South Dakota, and also as an Associate Researcher at the University of Berkley. Since 1989, he is Professor at the Fundamentals of Economics Department of the University of Alcalá (UAH). He was also Professor of Economic Theory at the University del Valle. Moreover, he was director of the postgraduate programme: Economic Management Environment and Natural Resources at the INAP-AECI, and in 2009 was appointed head of Instituto de Estudios Latinoamericanos (IELAT) of the UAH. He is Group Director of Economics and the Environment at the UAH.

He has been honoured with the National Economy and the Environment Award by the Ministry of Environment (SP). He has received the V Award for Innovation in the field of environment by 3M Foundation as well as the Award for the University/Society Transfer of Knowledge by the Social council of the UAH.

He has authored several specialized articles among others in the fields of financial economics, environmental economics and economic development, and has also taken part in numerous consulting and research projects.

Andrés Guiral (Co-Director)

PhD in Auditing, with a minor in Applied Psychology. Recipient of the Extraordinary Doctorate Award. MBA in Auditing. Postdoctoral/Fulbright scholarship 2004-2006. Assistant Professor of Accounting at the Universidad de Alcalá. Visiting Associate Professor at the University of California, Riverside (US), Sheffield University (UK) and Kansai University (Japan). Currently he is the head of BBVA's Country Risk and Public Sector Department - Managing Unit of Corporate Risk.

PROFESSORS

David Camino

Full Professor and Director of Financial Studies at the Universidad Carlos III de Madrid. PhD in Economic Science from the Universidad Autónoma de Madrid. MBA from Harvard University. Graduate in Economics and Business from UNED. Research interests are mainly Corporate and International Finance, as well as the Internationalization of Business.

Alejandro Casas

Executive MBA from IESE Business School. Double degree in Business Administration, and Financial and Actuarial Sciences from the Universidad Pontificia Comillas (ICADE). Director of Private Banking at Fortis Bank. Professional activity developed in the Corporate Finance Department at Santander Investment during the past seven years.

Félix Cuesta

PhD in Economics and Business Sciences from the Universidad de Alcalá. Founding Partner of the Centro Virtual de Asesoramiento Empresarial (CVAE), 1997- to date. Professional experience covers a range of national and international managerial positions in large domestic and multinational enterprises.

José Carlos Díez

PhD in Economics from the Universidad de Alcalá de Madrid. Holds a Masters in Financial Markets from IES-CEU University and is a graduate in Economics from the Universidad de Alcalá de Madrid. He is the Chief Economist of Intermoney, S.A. (CIMD Group); a Professor of Economics at the Universidad de Alcalá; and an Economic adviser for several multinational institutions including the Spanish Government and the European Commission.

Vicente Fernández

PhD in Economics from the Universidad Complutense de Madrid. MA in Economics from the University of Chicago, USA. Degree in Economic Science and Law from the Universidad Complutense de Madrid. Associate Lecturer in various universities and business schools throughout Spain.

François Friggit

Engineer. MSc in International Finance, Ecole des Hautes Etudes Commerciales, Paris. Head of Quants at Banco Santander. Has held positions in the Quantitative area in Paris, London and New York in institutions such as Calyon and Credit Lyonnais.

Anne Garvey

FCCA and Associate Lecturer at the Universidad de Alcalá, Madrid. Has worked for several years in multinational companies in the area of Finance. Fluent in Spanish, English (native speaker), and has an intermediate level in French. Research interests are focused on International Accounting and Financial Reporting.

David Gil

Masters in Direction of Audio-visual Companies. Degree in Managerial Sciences from the Universidad Carlos III de Madrid. Teaching experience covers topics such as Financial Analysis. Associate Lecturer of the Business Department at Universidad Carlos III de Madrid.

Ana Hernández-Ros

Executive Programme in Investment Banking Corporate Finance Seminar from Kellogg Graduate School of Management (Northwestern University), Chicago. Graduate in Business Administration, UCM. Work-experience as Financial Advisor with Goldman Sachs.

Juan Laborda Herrero

Degree in Economics from the University of Zaragoza. Chief Strategist in Lorenzo-Dávila EAFI and Director of Company Razona. Chief of Economy of Voz Populi digital newspaper. Currently a partner of Reason, Study of Economy and Finance. He developed an intense professional activity as a strategist and chief economist at Abante Advisors, the hedge fund BBVA & Partners, Barclays, Chemical Bank, Chase Manhattan Bank and Argentaria. He has published numerous scholarly articles financial economics.

Rafael Martins de Lima Ferreira

PhD in Economics from UNED. MBA from INSEAD. He has been associate professor in ICAI and UNED. He started to get to know the banking industry while working at McKinsey & Company having clients such as Banco Hispano Americano and Banco Sabadell. After spending one year at Amadeus developing financial models, he joined Santander Investment in 1994 to set up the first Market Risk Management Department in Spain together with an experienced banker from Goldman Sachs. Afterwards, he joined the Capital Markets Division at the parent bank to work in Complex Derivatives Structures.

After leaving Santander, Rafael Martins de Lima Ferreira became CEO of Hera Plasco, Canadian-Spanish joint venture developing large projects for converting industrial and municipal solid waste to energy using Plasma Gasification Process and funding them with complex Project Finance structures. Currently, he is CEO of Hera W2R, a company that works in the field of waste recovery to transform it into new raw materials or energy.

Gonzalo Montes

Executive Masters in Finance from the Instituto de Empresa (IE), Madrid. BA in Economics from the Universidad Carlos III de Madrid. His experience includes areas such as Corporate & Investment Banking in the Credit Department at Fortis Bank. Currently working at KMPG.

José Morales

Executive MBA from IESE Business School and the Universidad de Navarra. Degree in Business Administration from the Universidad Autónoma de Madrid. His professional background includes holding positions with Sener Grupo de Ingeniería (SGI), BBVA, and PricewaterhouseCoopers.

David Moreno

PhD in Economics from Universidad de Alcalá. Masters in Finance from CIFF. Professor at the Universidad Carlos III de Madrid. Research interests centre on Mutual Funds Performance Evaluation and New Portfolio Theories. His research examines issues as the persistence of mutual funds performance and the results of considering nonlinear techniques to create new classifications in mutual funds.

Ignacio Olmeda

Professor of Economics and Computer Sciences at the Universidad de Alcalá. Has authored six books and more than a hundred and fifty papers, mainly in the area of Quantitative Finance. He is the Director of the SUN Microsystems Laboratory of Computational Finance and Director of the Masters of Finance at CIFF. He has been a visiting scholar at several foreign institutions (UCSD, MIT and Japan).

Gonzalo Rodríguez

Professor Rodríguez Prada holds both a BA and MA in Economics (from the Universidad Autónoma de Madrid and University of Chicago respectively). He has a Doctorate in Business & Economics from the Universidad de Alcalá, Madrid, where he received the "Sobresaliente Cum Laude" award for his Thesis. He has held various visiting positions in foreign universities including Harvard, the University of California (Berkeley), as well as several universities throughout South America.

Alberto Sarricolea

Executive MBA from IESE Business School. Double degree in Business Administration, and Financial and Actuarial Sciences from the Universidad Pontificia Comillas (ICADE). Director of Private Banking at Fortis Bank. Professional activity developed in the Corporate Finance Department at Santander Investment during the past seven years.

Daniel Sotelsek

Daniel Sotelsek (@dfedericos) holds a PhD in Economics from the University of Alcalá and is the general director of Centro Internacional de Formación Financiera (CIFF), an educational private non-for-profit organisation established by the University of Alcalá and Santander Bank. Since 1999, he is an Associate Professor at the Departamento de Fundamentos de Economía of the University of Alcalá (UAH). Among other academic duties, he was vice-chancellor of Economic Affairs and later Deputy Manager at the UAH. In 2008, he is appointed head of the newly formed Instituto de Estudios Latinoamericanos (IELAT) of the UAH. He currently manages the Executive Master's degrees in Commercial Banking and Risk Management respectively. Since 1993, he has conducted a number of academic stays to institutions such as the University of Pisa, Harvard University, University of California Davis-San Diego, and the Inter-American Development Bank in Washington.

He has authored several specialized articles among others in the fields of financial economics, environmental economics and economic development, and has also taken part in numerous consulting and research projects.